PREFACE

The first edition of Class H was published in 1910, with a second and fundamentally unchanged edition published in 1920. More than a quarter of a century was to pass before the appearance of the third edition in 1949, which incorporated developments during, between, and immediately after the two world wars. A reprint edition was published in 1967, which included supplementary pages of additions and changes made through 1964.

For the past ten years, the Subject Cataloging Division has wanted to issue a revised edition of Class H. However, the desire has been continually frustrated by the shortage of staff time to review the existing schedule, to propose badly-needed changes, to review and approve those proposals, and to prepare the new edition editorially. In 1977 the decision was made to publish another edition of Class H without fail, and catalogers began to review and prepare extensive revisions to the part of Class H devoted to economics. As work proceeded, it became clear that the study and review required to bring the entire schedule into alignment with current terminology and patterns of thinking while keeping up with regular work assignments were likely to prevent completion of the revision within a reasonable amount of time.

With oral support from librarians on the ALA RTSD CCS Subject Analysis Committee, it was, therefore, decided to follow an unusual course of action. It was previously decided that Class H would be published in two parts: H–HJ and HM–HX. However, the first part would represent a completely revised edition, whereas the second part would be merely an unrevised cumulation, incorporating changes made since the third edition, without any necessarily time-consuming attempt to update concepts and terminology. As a result, this edition of HM–HX, an unrevised cumulation, reflects the basic outline, tone and terminology of the early twentieth century during which it was developed.

Some changes have been made in this edition, primarily of an editorial nature. Lawrence Buzard, editor of classification, and Nancy Jones and Dorothy Thomas, assistant editors of classification, completed the cumulation, updating some terminology, arranging notes and references to conform to current practice, and deleting many parenthesized numbers. In addition, tables were arranged in a more consistent and uniform fashion reflecting the deletion of Cutter number countries from the tables at the end of the schedule. Many captions that can be recognized as obsolete have been reproduced as they appeared in earlier editions in order to enable this volume to be produced quickly and with a minimum of effort.

All legal materials now are classed in the appropriate subclasses of Class K that have been developed. Therefore, many numbers in HM–HK that formerly provided for laws and legal topics have been eliminated. However, some numbers relating to laws have been left in the schedule, as their removal would have caused time-consuming research. Any numbers relating to law should be ignored; current works are no longer classed there.

As of this writing, the revised edition of H–HJ is in preparation, with publication tentatively predicted in 1981. We expect to issue a revised edition of HM–HX as soon as practicable.
